

FIRM PROFILE

What is it that could possibly separate The Schimberg Group from the rest of the architectural world? We provide architectural services as do others. We provide interior design services as do some. We provide construction administration services, which many do also. We procure furniture and provide all of the detailed design services necessary to fulfill a project from inception to completion.

So what sets us apart? What is our firm's mission?

Egos are left at the door. It is about completing the project with open communication, cost effectively and efficiently. We have no desire to create an ode to The Schimberg Group. We approach projects as a team and we look for ways to create the highest level of design, no matter what scale project or what type of client, with the most efficient and smooth management system possible.

This is what sets us apart and we are proud of that.

The Schimberg Group's highest priority is to respect the client's vision, budget and schedule. Our strategy, based on a full understanding of both the exterior and interior, coordinates materials, textures, form, scale, proportion, color, furniture and architectural detailing with site appropriate elements to present a unified design, maintaining focus on the client's sensibilities.

The firm also integrates creative energy with a highly efficient management system. All projects are a team effort. All parties involved, whether the client, the engineer, the contractor or the sub-contractor, are managed by The Schimberg Group and collectively pursue the evolution and final implementation of the entire design, both from the street and from inside.

HISTORY:

In February 2004, Barron Schimberg created The Schimberg Group to provide construction management and owner representative services. Later that year, The Schimberg Group was hired by Whole Foods Market as a LEED consultant, achieving the first LEED Silver certified supermarket in the country. TSG's relationship with WFM evolved from LEED consulting to construction management to architecture and interior design for the national chain, allowing TSG to expand its architectural and interior design services for all types of commercial and residential projects.

The Schimberg Group currently provides architecture and full interior design services, including furniture procurement, for clients ranging from Whole Foods Market and the Chiles Restaurant Group to SunTrust Bank and private developers.
